PRESS RELEASE WITH VIDEO TRAILER EMBEDDED

One Day in the Life of a Child Can Be Memorable

My Mum Says "Blah Blah Blah" is author Aly Walsh's fun story about a typical day raising a small child. The story shows that parents are often tuned out by their kids, who find much more interesting things to listen to than our "Blah Blah Blah."

Walsh got the idea for the book when her four-year-old son told her, "Mum, all you say is blah blah blah." If you've ever felt that what you're telling your children is falling on deaf ears, you'll get vindication that you are not alone. The author says, "I wanted to write a story to show my son that there are consequences of actions, particularly negative, if you choose not to listen to your parents when they are trying to guide you."

Children aged three to seven will especially enjoy the book's clever illustrations. My Mum Says "Blah Blah Blah" provides plenty of laughs with its guidance.
